For the past week or so, random pages on here are very slow to load or don't load at all...eventually, when I refresh the page in firefox I get "The connection to the server was reset while the page was loading."

Anyone else getting this issue?

I haven't had any problems. I don't use Firefox though.

I also get the same thing for a while, I remeber a year or so back this used to happen at certain times of the day while a back-up was taken...

I also noticed that when the site is being slow here, it's also the exact same at www.apathbeyond.com, and I believe they're hosted on the same box.

This used to happen due to the database backups. These bakcup's should now happen less frequent, so the problem should be less ... problematic. Bit maybe something else came up now.

I think someone is flooding the box when that happens. I am still monitoring to find out what's going on.

Any updates? is it being attacked? Im still getting this issue randomly during the day (and I don't think its on my end).

p.s: Crimson, check your PM's (I replied to yours).
