My game is ready for a public beta. I'm hoping to get lots of people in there to break it for me and then report the bugs. If you like card games like you've never seen before then you might want to give it a try.

There is a tutorial section with lots of information, I would try Skirmish with an Easy Sim first then move on to Challenge mode or possible playing online. We only have 1 online server so no everyone will have the best pings on it.

You can play for free, there are premium accounts but that comes later.

Looks interesting. Might give it a try later when it isn't 1:00 in the morning

You should record a short demo video; post it on your site.

Thanks guys, yeah I've been wanting to do a video and plan to post one on the main page as soon as it gets made. So far I haven't had a single person make an account though 0.0

The joy of a startup. If I get some spare time today I will make an account and give it a whirl; mostly for QA curiosity, though. I love to break things.

ok i would just like to say that i tried your game .. and it's a little hard to win .. i often found myself never having the cards to attack with and drawing like every single turn .. and everytime i would get the opponent down to around 50 HP he'd just heal back up to full .. i don't know if its supposed to be this hard to win? but it took me over 16 minutes just gang banging an easy sim with a hard sim 2v1 .. it's a little hard to attack when you have to depend on the same color cards or numbers. i like the idea for the game though. keep up the good work.

Wow I've never had an Easy Sim dominate like that before! There is a real 'virtual' deck so everything still is on the luck of the draw but I've never had that much trouble killing 1 Simulant, maybe in challenge mode but not there.

I would say you just had a bad round, if you watch the video I posted on my website it shows a friend of mine playing against an Easy Sim and he beat it in 6 minutes with me asking him to kinda drag it out.

My suggestion would be to focus on getting zero cards and using the special cards to knock him out

EDIT: Wow that Easy Sim even got MVP
