this is important bows are the best weapons in games, but they're rare and I don't know much rpg stuff which I assume is a more bow heavy genre

post games where u can fuck around with a bow that doesn't auto-target because that's the wrong rpg

+ points for fantasy setting without elves, dwarfs or anime

so far I've played Half Lifes, Dark Messiah, Call of Juarez, Gothic 3, Fable

I sometimes daydream of being a Ranger believe me it's very true

Mount and Blade, and Mount and Blade: Warbands

They're not the best games you can play but they have bows

Reviewer Gary Whitta gave the PC version 820 out of a possible 1000 points, praising the graphics, controls and sense of involvement.

does morrowwind have a proper bow or did that get introduced in oblivion?

Bows? Real men play games with grappling hooks like Just Cause 2 and impose America's will onto the meager, rice patty-tending population in corrupt banana republics.

Just Cause 2 was fun

Uncharted 2 has crossbows at one point

I got Just Cause 2 for free with my graphics card. I found it incredibly boring.

You were obviously playing it incorrectly. On your way out, please leave your testicles at the door.

bows in morrowind suck.

playing with bows in Oblivion is alot more fun. Creping up behind shit and shooting people. If I remember correctly; sometimes they don't know where you shot from if you hide well enough. Which makes it all the more fun.

Dragon Age:Origins.
Unfortunately for you, dwarves and elves. Single player, I'm finding it to be really good (so far).

I'd actually like to give a second recommendation to Mount & Blade: Warband, if only for the mulitplayer and the combat. The RPG elements of the RPG are actually fairly awful.

Duke Nukem.

The old 2d scroller, mind you. The 3d games weren't as fun IMO.
