The following servers HAVE MOVED to the new ladder server IP:

A00
A000
a0000000
a00000002
a00000005
a0000000d
a0000002b
a0000005k

All other servers have not. If you don't see your favorite server on this list, let the owner know to update their hosts file. Full instructions are on http://renladder.blackhand-studios.net.

Thanks!

Only the 8 servers I've listed have migrated over. Any other servers that don't update their IP will have games not listed on the ladder until they update their hosts file. Spread the word!

Am i going mad or is the ladder now using end-game score rather than the ladder points? Or was it always that way?!

It was always that way, all players start out with 10,000 points every month. Westwood originally designed it that way, I assume they did it like that to prevent players from ending up with a total ladder amount that is below zero.

It does make me wonder how close anyone has ever gotten to zero or if they've ever gone below it.

I dont really follow this? As far as I can see rankings are still determined by ladderpoints.

It is not determined by end-game points. But yes, you start with 10,000 ladder points every month, and yes, people have gone below 0, but it may have been from those servers who send bad data.

Yeah, that's what I said, he just thought the amount of ladderpoints looked more like ingame scores, probably because he either visited it for the first time or hadn't visited it in a long time.

Is it just me or does the BHS ladder search function appear to be broken now? I get the most random results typing in any name. Rank numbers still seem to work though.

That's very possible. The new server runs a newer version of MySQL and it broke the way I formulate the rankings table. I haven't been able to figure out how to fix it yet.
