Hey I used to play alot in high school my name was loboys or promethus I don't know even anyone here remembers me, I used to play more cw's than regular games but I also played regular games. I moved to israel a few years ago and joined the army, but I have about 9 months left and now my time off is getting better than it used to be (4 days off a month but it should soon be better).

Anyways I reinstalled the game a few weeks back but anytime I click anything the buttons become 0,1,2,3, and so on until 9 and it goes back to 0 no matter what button I click. Does anyone know how to fix this problem?

As in when I click w to move forward it's just the 0 button and than if I click w again it becomes 1 and than if I hit it again it becomes 2 and so on. Pretty much everything is the number keys starting from 0 and anytime you hit the button again it becomes 1 and keeps on going like this.

And liquid I remember you to buddy, it's cool to see the renegade community is still going on. This is def one of the best games I've played, I can't say for any game that I've ever played it so long and still could go back to playing it and not be bored.

While in-game, press ESC, click on the "Options" button and then on the "Controls" button and try playing around with the settings there.

I did that, in fact I even went to the data folder and deleted the .config file and the problem persisted.

Try re-installing, I've never heard of this issue before. Can you play other games just fine?

Have you reset the controls? Afaik Renegade has an option for that.

Yeah, it sounds like you have w bound to mousewheelup or mousewheeldn. Does pressing the 'default' button in the config menu fix it?

I've reinstalled the game but to no avail. Also I've pressed default on the controls and it's done nothing. Other games on my computer work fine when I try them. It's just renegade, even when I was installing the game it had this problem; as in when I was installing the game and it needed the serial number it did this and I just had to keep backspacing until it got the right number.

What do you mean w bound to the mousewheelup/dn?

I don't recall which does which, but when you use the mouse scroll wheel, it cycles through the available weapons you have, either up or down. To me it sounded like you have 'w' set to one of those. Do you have some sort of keyboard macro system set up?
