Quote:When you were born, you were the 5,471,437,383rd person alive on Earth.

80,641,399,147th person to have lived since history began.
Assuming that the worlds population assumptions they use are correct ofcourse.

You really trust the British to come up with a theoretical algorithm that spits out a random number at your face and take that as factual? lols

They don't even ask for the time of day you were born, that seems to be more important considering a number of babies are born every minute in this world.
