Sometimes when you join a server you will be presented with an end game results screen that won't go away, you have to quit and rejoin the server.

This is an old bug that I used to see all the time on ECW, its caused by the round ending (via timer or coded event) and there being no players in game. For some reason if the round ends with no players in game the next time a player joins they are presented with the results screen (perhaps the goal was it to be a feature but beings the only thing the player can do is quit and rejoin before they can actually play its more of an inconvenience than anything).
