came to me free with the software that I also received for free, All I did was very simple, took what actually fun. But because so many of you feel the way you do, I will pull the map back. Hope this amends most of what was done.

I think the problem here is a small misunderstanding of how Level Edit works along with not being able to read the posts talking about this because they're burried/mixed-up with the flames.

See, in your Data folder, if the map Glacier_Flying.mix is there, when you make that preset in LE, it uses the w3d file from Glacier_Flying. Works with all models.

Trust me I didn't expect you to know this. It did go a bit far but I guess that's how things go when little misunderstandings happen. Next time just don't brag as much and check with one of the "pros" that you did it right

Also, do not wave it in front of ACK's face before you release it, in face don't say a word about the map before you release it. First make it look graphicly good and add a few twists. Then suddenly pop up with it with a dl link so they can play it. That's more likely to generate good feedback. Then when you get tons of good feedback, that's when you have it in his face. There's some strat to modding/mapping

Notice: For those who can't tell, the last paragraph is actually mostly a joke just to cheer up the mood.....

Edit: BTW, name calling isn't going to help. Best to ignore, trust me.

You took the map and then subsequently extracted the W3D from it and named it glacier_ai.w3d.

Westwood never intended to make any AI enabled maps. Because you can pull something in doesn't make it yours. Don't go around renaming my W3D files, either.

If you don't believe what I'm saying, I'll show you a screenshot of the zip file.

You can see that Glacier Flying was last modified before the air unit beta ended... Which Crimson and I had partaken in.

(from the other thread)

sense it came to me free with the software that I also received for free, All I did was very simple, map Glacier Flying to get any thing for my version, but if this is how so many of you feel, then fine, actually fun. But because so many of you feel the way you do, I will pull the map back. Hope this amends most of what was done.

This is too little, too late. Your reputation in and around here will be scared for life.

Westwood never released Glacier Flying, they gave it to ACK, and he released it, the version that you got out of Commando is ACK's. So would you sit by and let someone take one of your maps, add a little bit of crap to it, and say it's theirs?

Captkurt01Your an idiot. STFU

Yes that's really funny, he's an idiot and you can't even spell it.

So... if you broke into a supermarket, and stole a frozen chicken, so it didn't cost you anything...

that would be OK too?

He's saying since Commando is free, the maps and everything in it is free, thus he can edit anything there and say it's his...

That would be like saying, it's wrong to steal from an amusement park that you have to pay to get in, but there's nothing wrong with stealing from an amusement park that's free to get in.

Accually, I think in this case would be something like this:

He walks into a supermarket, picks up a frozen chicken, calls it frozen chicken_ai, and how it's his.
