Another good one:

An Iraqi diplomat asks Colin Powell, " Is it true that only 13% of your students can find Iraq on a map?"

Powell, " That may be true, but unfortunately for you, those 13% are marines. "

Have a dandy day! :twisted:

But shouldn't it be "fortunately" (why would it be unfortunate for iraq that marines couldn't find Iraq?)

(navy > marines)

You read it wrong.

He said that the 13% of people able to find Iraq on a map were Marines, so that's rather unfortunate for Iraq.

OOPS. But I still stand by my claim. I've dealt with a lot of Marines, for the most part, I felt like I was talking to the Scarecrow from the Wizard of Oz.

Go Army!!

There is no reply in this thread that showed that anyone didn't know that it was fake. In fact, there is only one other reply in this thread besides yours that was even talking about or referring to satirewire.com, the rest were about the marines joke that Kirby told.

1. There is a difference between a reply and a thread. A reply is a message made in reply to the thread, which starts with the first post on the first page, and includes all of the replies in it.
 2. There is also a difference between a topic and a thread. The topic is like the "background", "subject", "theme" of a thread. Refer to number one for what a thread is...
 3. I did think before I typed. Obviously you didn't think before you typed, er... I mean "hunt and pecked".
 4. All I'm doing is responding... It has nothing to do with getting a higher post count.
 5. Hope you enjoy your 6th grade education.
