You had to do that neat idea of "leaving" your vehicle when you run in to sap a building..

You just love how the little kid's jump into them and run around -- spamming "I need repairs" - all the while your planting your C-4 on the MCT....

You relish how you singlehandedly take down an entire building - because some kid got to "jack" your empty ride.

I hate you....

Now - it seems - more and more people are "saving" the frigging enemy vehicle - and not the IMPORTANT FRIENDLY building that your inside of.

also - on another note - if your a driver of a FULLY loaded APC/APV - DO NOT JUMP OUT AN LEAVE IT....

Instead = provide covering fire - protect the sappers going in -- jam it into the door to blow mines - BUT DON'T GET OUT! Wait till the sucker blows. -- then run in and do some more damage.

Especially if you have all ready taken out the the enemies vehicle maker - sort of goes against the point of depriving them of vehicles if you give them one.

(BTW - this is in the kidding mode.... I always leave a vehicle when i know it can distract the other side - but never if the vehicle maker is wacked - you can carry more than one person -- DO IT!)

Right on the dime. Ok kiddies, when you're rushing with 4 people in an APC, guess what!! It doesn't take that much firepower to knock out a building. Hell, it takes 2/4 people tops. That means, instead of making the biggest BOOM ever, just stay in the APC, or better yet, hide beside it repairing it while the APC itself provides coverfire from the driver.

If you have a half-respectable team, you won't fuck up.

I cannot count the number of times i've been able to take out a building because some n00b on the other team took my vehicle after I hopped out and ran inside...often in full view of the n00b.

Well then call me the ultra-n00b then I guess. I just thought I was real smart to take their vehicle while they were doing their damage, then let them come out and see their wheels gone...

Ah well, live and learn.

You'd rather have their vehicle than save the building they've just gone in to destroy?

Sure, I guess. It's just a game. I figured I was doing a service by unblocking the entrance they parked their vehicle in front of for others to do the job.

The best part is when you hear the vehicle hopping newbie straffing the side of the building with the APC as if that will prevent you from blowing it up...
