Yay, now all we need is 2,000 and we can have ourselves a 2,000th member party.

Why not a 1000th

Too early. I always like to think that 2,000 is the official number for forum post parties, member parties, etc. Somewhat like a tradition.

I don't think its gonna ever got to 2000, but 1000 is a good party number.

I think we will hit the 2,000 mark. I mean, if you think about it, there were still people registering even when the official boards were closing down. And even now, people come here (even some still think these are the official boards) still registering.

Once is enough... Theres this thing called an edit button if you forgot to add something... or delete your post and redo it.

bigejoe14(even some still think these are the official boards)

These are the official forums... just not hosted by westwood anymore.

Well um, maybe that's because... These are the Official Renegade Boards! These were ran by Westwood, then they were given to Crimson when they could no longer keep them...

Wow! It's 812!!!

Waits till it's 1000

Yes, for all intents and purposes, these are the official forums. But what I think he meant is because they look the same, people assume they are the same forums and that I was able to import their accounts and post counts. I sure wish I could, but at least Blazer and I (but mostly Blazer) was able to import a great deal of the old posts.

And on a note, well done with the forums, i've never said it before, so i thought i would now

Yea, that's what I meant. I'm not really that good at wording my thoughts. :oops:

Thanks for clarifying it!
