I would say in game is a good place for pictures of the game.

I am well aware of the pathetic attempt by Westwood to give us renders and such...but that gives me no infantry and no true good pics of vehicles and very few at that. I am also aware of the fact that screenshots are a feature of Renegade but I don't feel like having to take minutes to trace around the units just to make some graphics.

You could do what I did:

Make a plain white map with no hills or anything except some base buildings to purchase what you need...

Then I get my freind to pose on the map take a print screen...

Then I open it in photoshop use the wzard tool to delete the white area...

Bopy all the picture and I can put it anywhere now the background is transparent ...

NOTE: Using just one color for the background alllows youto delete the background easier.
