For those who follow the saga of Blazer and/or Crimmy... just wanted to let you know he interviewed for a job at Cisco keeping track of a couple web servers and was offered the position tonight.

On a sadder note, I was laid off from my job doing PHP web development after 6 months today. They are "going another direction"... for what's it's worth.

Hooray for Blazer!

Ummmm... consolidation type stuff for Crimson.  Still, you have 6 months to find a new job which is more than some people get.

Congratulations blazer.

Crimson... well, i guess shit happens.
Good luck with whatever you choose to do with your life.

Try_leeStill, you have 6 months to find a new job which is more than some people get.
I assume she means she'll have worked there for a total of 6 months, today.

wouldn't think it would be too hard to find another web design job. I have 3 or 4...not sure about one yet, all are minor jobs. building one for an elementry school, one for a small charity, one for a candlestick bussiness and maybe one for another local bussiness. At very least...you should be able to find some local companies that want a site put up really quickly that you can make a crappy website for in a few hours.

Congrats to Blazer0X!

Crimmy, the job market for IT is tight but not impenetrable.  Keep a cheery disposition and keep at it! :thumbsup:
