That's exactly what happened to me. So then I tryed to re-install. I guess my CD has a scratch on it for the Game 1 pack. I've got to wait acouple of days for my special CD SomeRhino is sending me so I can install it again. Try reinstalling. But only if you disk isn't scratched .

I had that problem a while back, YSL Muffins i think told me to Delete the Host files or something like that.

I think it was .HOSTS or .HOST

Hope you can get it working again.

That's almost right....

If you installed RenEvo anytime, you might have trouble getting on if the ServServ is down.

Just open up c:\windows\system32\drivers\etc\hosts in notepad. Put a # sign in front of the line for servserv.westwood.com. Then you'll use the EA servers instead of RenEvo and you might be able to get in.

Try deleting the HOSTS file. Search for it--it's called simply HOSTS, no extension.

If that line isn't there, then you never installed RenEvo and hence the problem lies elsewhere.

What about regedit and auto name login into RE USA or RE Euro Start>Run>Regedit>LocalMachine>Software>Westwood>Renegade>WOLSettings>Logins> then go to one of your names and server should be USA Server or w/e your main server is.

Deleting that HOSTS file cleared up the problem for me. I've been using GSA for the past month or so.

Why delete? You can just move it out of the renegade folder so if you need it later it's no prob.
