I have more ips than you can count available for my use. Banning IPs, e-mails and names will not work. You will soon learn to p3rr the power of Lithium.

For one thing, Lithium can't type worth a damn and he knows it. You, on the other hand, just picked his name off my home page and want to assign these wimpy worthless attacks to his name.

Go away, child, really... I have several folks ready to delete every post you waste your time to make.

I think it is time to ban the ISP itself. Let all those that use that service and browse here complain to the provider. It worked for php.com

Crimson, I am going to ask something I was always against, but now the time has come. Please post publically ALL IP's this person has posted under. What harm will it do? Other than we MAY be able to trace to the source using all the IP's
