lol i just figured it out, all this time playing with commando i never noticed the thing where u can scale down the skeleton on models, so im working on a model ot suit a really small person.

warning : i have not even coem close to finishing this model.

Update:

i ifxed up the model a little, just gotta fix some overlapping poly and i madea quik skin and here is his unskinned little vehicle probably just time on his hand, he most likely won't release this like other mods he was working on, gives eye candy, but no finishing products for the community

ex. <http://www.renstickdeath.2ya.com/> looks like you were doing good with that one, posting pics and giving links to the site and everything, then you just run off, and leave it, now your back again, when you going to run off for good? just showing stuff and not giving it out is a waste of the mod communities time.....

I pmed you about this mod wondering how it was going after a month of no updates, you replied someathing along the lines of "I'm in 8 mod teams, i don't have time" crap, you should know your work limits, stick to them, and produce things instead of half done crap.

yes, namehunter was trying to do the same but couldn't contact the guy, and no one had information on how it was done, hopefully PsychoArmy will produce something and go somewhere with this or at least give a tutorial/settings/where it is located on how it is done so someone else can try to make something out of it

For vehicles, it just works somewhat differently. All you have to do is make everything small.....

NH did figure it out (as stupid as it may sound), but was too lazy to relink everything.

The scale option is cool, it's uses overlooked.....but that might change.....

ahh, i lost all the files to the stickdeath mod...

and yes i do have a lot of free time..

this dragon model, guess wot its 400 poly and i made it for generals this alien model which i use for the small chracter model up the top(unshrunked)

this wizard model alos made for gen this new pt terminal(the poles move when u go near it) etc...

And lol at u for wasting ur itime following a mod that has 1 team member and no1 else in the community willing to help which i constantly asked for.

I asking you peopel to take me seriously.

Just because i like ot make fun mods... they might not be great caulity but i do take modding very seriously myself, i might not act it but i do.
