Today at approximately 3:30 am EST, Duke of Nukes (An ironic name considering his pacifist stance) was firmly trounced in his pro-Iraq stance by a coalition of the willing. This coalition shot holes in his poor geopolitical ideology, pacifist B.S., poorly laid out arguments, and general bad grammar.

Coalition members consisted of U.S military veterans, Aircraftkiller, and persons with an I.Q. over 4.

Saadaam Hussein was quoted as saying the following: " I knew we shouldn't have hired that French wannabee to speak for us. How are people ever going to think I'm a peaceful man with idiots like this? Guess I'll just have to see to it that his family has an 'accident'."

There were no survivors of the " Pacifist Revolution ", as it is becoming called in government circles.

We now take you back to your regularly scheduled flaming.....

I refused to reply to the two of you because you have proved time and time again throughout the past year that you ARE NOT respectable members of the community. Spotelmo came online...and I gladly listened to him and I understand his viewpoints...although I do not necessarily see them as right YET.

But hey...you can think whatever you want...it's a free country, right?

America is quite possibly the most despised nation in the world. The reason: people like you.

How to terrorism? America is the largest terrorist country in the world. The message we send out with this war is more powerful than anything. Go against America, and you will be bombed.

The reason it's free has nothing to do with terrorism. I think someone needs to go back to school.

Duke of Nukes America is quite possibly the most despised nation in the world. The reason: people like you.

The reason: jealousy. Other countries that are not as prosperous or have as many freedoms are jealous of this fact. If we're so hated, why does everyone want to come here?

Duke of Nukesbow to terrorism? America is the largest terrorist country in the world. The message we send out with this war is more powerful than anything. Go against America, and you will be bombed.

You contradict yourself here. "Go against America, and you will be bombed."

How is that terrorism? If someone attacks us, we're not going to stand by and take it... that's why we're a world superpower.

Duke of NukesThe reason it's free has nothing to do with terrorism. I think someone needs to go back to school.

The reason we are free would start back in 1776 when we declared our independence and our forefathers put together the Constitution... and thousands have died and will continue to die to protect our country and that document for us and our children. People have been fighting wars for centuries and they're not going to stop any time soon.

not everyone wants to come to America...please dont act like it. Jealousy of America doesn't make the world go round. I have met people that hate America...and I can assure you, none of them are jealous. They see us as a stuck up nation that thinks the sun revolves around them...gee...I wonder where they get that from...

Crimson

You contradict yourself here. "Go against America, and you will be bombed."

How is that terrorism? If someone attacks us, we're not going to stand by and take it... that's why we're a world superpower.

What I meant by that isn't what you think. The message we are sending out is that if you question the government, if you dont blindly agree with us, we will bomb you and make you regret it, so you had better agree with us over every issue.

Crimson

Attacking Iraq isn't defending America. Many would say it's defending America's allies...which is a just thing...IF he does in fact have WOMD that he can use on them.

Yes, that's why we're having to disarm Saddam... because he questioned our government. And you see how the government treats people who question it... all of you who think the government isn't doing the right thing... you're on the lam, aren't ya? Because they're gonna come lock you in prison! Who have we bombed for questioning our government?

Wow, you all start flaming Duke of Nukes just because he does not share your political views. Did you ever, I mean really ever asked oneself whether your beliefs are right?

Crimson you say there should be no insults yet declaring that anti-war people are idiots and morons.

Kirby, you keep stating how heroic you have been and how much you know about the world, yet you refer to stereotypic characterizations of other countries, its people and the USA.

I ask you, was peace with Iraq ever an option for the US administration? No. it wasn't. It was to change the government in Iraq by ALL means, including the death of thousands of innocent people, just like the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11th where thousands of innocent civilians died. How is Bush then better than Bin Laden? How is the US foreign policy not state terrorism? How does the USA have the right to dictate how the world has to behave? And above all, how is a military occupation better than a dictatorial regime? Would you like the USA to be occupied just because someone regards Bush as a war criminal?

This discussion really has to end. I am repeating myself for the 10th time now, I get Kirby's K9's and Crimson's points and no one will ever convince the other one. So I think I will stop debating now unless new issues arise which are worth discussion.

eggmacWow, you all start flaming Duke of Nukes just because he does not share your political views. Did you ever, I mean really ever asked oneself whether your beliefs are right?

I believe Duke is being flamed for not backing up his statements. Most of his posts have been to say stuff like "America is a terrorist country" and "You can't win this arguement". He's offered nothing to substantiate his views.

And yes, I question my beliefs often. I look for things that can legitimately prove or disprove my beliefs. That's why when these discussions on Iraq come up I ask for those who are opposed to war to offer a better alternative. I honestly want to know if there is one. So far though, no one has given an alternative. I think that speaks for itself.

This is correct. If Duke would post some facts, or opinions backed up by facts.

He is not being flamed because "he does not share your political views". I can respect statements that are backed-up by facts. But like NeoSaber stated things like "America is a terrorist country" & "You can't win this arguement" dont take anyone very far.

I wish we could make some progress.

Well I was merely stating some oppinions. I never claimed that we should stop sharing our ideas. I never claimed that I wanted to remain out of these discussions. I actually find this a good place to share ideas and get some entertainment. I stated that we can't change some of each others minds nothing more than that.

I do apologise and was planning to make a follow up post about my previous one after some thought. I realise that it did imply futility but then again let's hope people see this and tone down the flaming and keep it more to sharing ideas.

I find it does resemble a forum war though. People take sides on an issue and discuss it. But sadly that part that becomes "war" is certain individuals that do not wish to discuss this in an impersonal manner and misguide themselves that rage and insults strengthen their arguements.
