Neither, i can give you a nice white tower case for free.

Modding a cpu is stupid IMHO

I like the second one

My CPU runs at 50-60 degrees normally and a lot of people say that is way too high. I've been running it like it is for ages and never had any problems.

C, F is chilly, really cold for a CPU. A fan controller is good if you own a noisy fan. My Volcano 11+ comes with one and I use it when I'm typing and turn it up when I'm playing planetside or Renegade.

Yeah at the full 5400RPM it is very loud but it dies cool it down quite good. When i'm typing like now and not using the CPU a lot i turn it down to around 40-45% speed. But If I leave my PC doing nothing i could probably turn it down to it's lowest setting where you can't hardly hear it. ut i just press the power button on my PC to send it into standby so i hardly use the very low setting. But it is useful when you don't want the full drone of the fan when your typing or doing some work.

Hehe, once, I made a custom cooling system. I took the air out of my AC vent, which was quite cold, then ran it to about 5-6 fans. I got it down quite low while running a few programs. (It was really loud, hehe)

P.S. Just for looks, I would go with #2.

I'd suggest looking on newegg.com for a case as well. Tigerdirects prices are a little..um..high. Take for instance this chieftec case newegg has for sale, even comes with a ps, only $89.99 (US dollars)

<http://www.newegg.com/app/viewproduct.asp?description=11-125-202&DEPA=1>

Heres what it looks like

<http://www.newegg.com/app/Showimage.asp?image=11-125-202-08.JPG/11-125-202-07.JPG/11-125-202-06.JPG/11-125-202-05.JPG/11-125-202-03.JPG/11-125-202-10.JPG/11-125-202-09.JPG/11-125-202-04.JPG>

Hopefully the links work but if not go to newegg.com and the chassis should be on the main page. I recommend newegg the prices are good and they get your stuff to you quicker than most other places ive used. Just my two cents.
