I posted a thread, then I checked back about 30 min later, and it was gone. So I posted another. I checked back in like 30-45 min again, and it was gone! WHERE DID THEY GO?

I'm going to explain this since you're obviously unable to figure out what's going on.

This forum is now moderated. Yes, moderated. Unlike before, this forum has someone attending to it for at least an hour a day.

That means no one will be spamming this forum with inane clutter that has nothing to do with modifying the game.

Asking "why was my topic locked" or "why was my topic deleted" over and over is spam. You do not need a reason as to why I lock anything here.

I'll give one now so you stop making topics for me to put in The Silo. You're spamming the forum each time you ask "why was roofgnomes locked?" or when you say "fuck you ack" and the other garbage you've been writing. I'm not going to explain it another time.

I say this because you're taking your "moderating" too far. Crimson, Blazer, and Lefty NEVER locked so many threads, and controlled the forums so much. I suggest you take after them, and lighten up.

I'm posting over and over again because you KEEP DELETING AND LOCKING MY THREADS! If you lock one thread, I'm going to make a new one so I can at least finish what I wanted to say!

Did you suddenly forget to read what I wrote?

None of them ever really did anything in this forum. They have other things that are more important to care for. That is why they rarely locked or moved any threads. I modify the game on a daily basis. I have a vested interest in keeping this forum clean. I don't like coming online to see it full of garbage.

I don't care. When a topic is locked, that means the discussion is over. If you persist, I will have Crimson review the case for a three day ban. You've had your warning, now behave and post things that are on topic for this forum.

There's nothing wrong with wanting this particular forum to stick to the topic at hand. Use the general forum for your spam and any complaints about it.
