I am sell a paintball gun and a gamecube. Here is the Paintball gun specs:

Quote:Originally posted by me on pballcanada forums
I have an upgraded spyder shutter for sale. It has a custom camo job that is totally amazing too.
Here are the specs:

*****

32* carbon fiber barrel
32* magnaport valve
32* bolt
6-stage aci sub-zero x-chamber
4x15 scope
custom camo job
chrome lpc
also includes stock reg, barrel, bolt, and lpc.

***Make an offer***

If you are a woodsball player, this is the gun for you, it is quieter than most autockers and shoots great. If you are more of a speedball player, you might want to take the camo off(not hard to do). I only ever chopped a ball once with this gun, and it was the first day i got it because I forgot to oil it. Ever since I have cleaned it before and after every time I've played. I am selling this gun as is, I will NOT selling anything seperate, or take anything off of it. I don't have any pics because i don't have a web cam or scanner. This is for the gun and upgrades only, it does not include a tank, mask, or hopper.

If you are american, it will be about 200 shipped, but i'll have to check to make sure.

I know it's not likely, but I will trade this for a cheap autocker.

Gamecube:

nintendo gamecube with 2 games(super smash bros. melee, and agent under fire), 2 controllers, 1 memory card, rf adaptor, and travell case. All manuals, cases, and cabels included(except gc box).

asking 250 canadian(190 american), you pay shipping. Thanks!

1st of all, paintballing kicks any type of games ass, because you turn a paintball game into a scenario of just about any game you like. You can play almost any game mode from halo and ts2 with paintball.

2nd of all, gamecube is one of the funnest systems if you have 3 or 4 people playing at once, xbox you can have 4 players too, but don't rule out those so called "kiddy" games for gc yet, they are amazing games. Gamecube also kicks ps2's ass in gaming and graphix.

and Finaly - IF YOU'RE NOT INTERESTED> STFU!

You would probably have a better chance using the forums @ Hardocp.com or Anandtech.com

They both have dedicated FS/T forums. Paintball supplies usually move pretty well there. As far as the GC goes, most people are probably holding their breath for the price drop at the end of this month to buy a new one.

You should try airsoft some time. You can choose between many exact replicas (As in, weight, looks, size, etc.) of real world guns (like the m4a1, mp5, ak-47, etc.) and real military outfits (BDU's, vests, etc.). Most of the guns are only around $150-$200, most of them are full auto (can be switched between full and semi-auto if applicable) electric guns, and last for several thousand BBs (ALOT more than what you'll use in an entire day.) before you need to recharge, that fire around 300fps and above. They shoot 6mm plastic BBs, and can be loaded with paint balls if you want to.

You basicly play the same as if you were paintballing, except it's more realistic and fun.

(One of the things that I dislike about paintballing is how crappy the guns look, you have this large and quite ugly container on top (called a 'hopper' for some freaky reason), and a large gas cylinder below the gun, and a cheap look. Comparing paintball guns to airsoft bb guns is like comparing a Model T ford, to a modern day hybrid car.)

Yeah airsoft is neat, I play it once a week if nothing strange comes up. Batteries can die during a day though, at least in our games. (Some have lasted 8 hours or so.)

I used to play paintball with my good ol' Tippman 98C. Too bad the sport is so expensive to maintain, or I'd have bothered to play it more than only a few times.

Nowadays, I prefer the real thing.

Considering you're CANADIAN, that probably means shooting at reindeer, or people from Minnesota.
