It happened to me only once...i hopped into an apc for a rush and i was a pic. I noticed my view was a little screwed up..almost like it was in first person view when i was in it. And i could shoot infantry and tanks while i was in the apc. It was quite amusing as i never seen that before.

Yes, that's a Vet trick that not many people know...

It's true value lies in the fact that you can repair yourself and shoot while your in the drivers seat.

Good luck trying to figure out to aim it right, or even get in it consistently.....

That one took me a loooooooooooooong time to master.

yea, it's cool but you can fix it by just getting out of the vehicle and getting back in. however I found that if Im driving an apc and some people hop in, and my whole apc control goes in warps or goes screwy, someones jumped into the vehicle with that error so I tell them all to get out and back in to fix the problem. It's happened with transport helicopters too, the vehicle is blocn from the sky and I get blamed for bad driving when someones messed with the control, or I happened to get the error climbing into the vehicle myself.

this happens to me ALL the time...it's actually rather annoying.
But about other people getting in a tank or apc and screwing up the driving? Happens to me all the time as well...the worst part is when ou're trying to shoot at an enemy unit and some bozo is messing with your turret, so you naturally tell him toi get out....and he doesn't...and there's that #%^&(g anti-message-flood thing so you can only say it so muh...and then you lose your tank.

ARRGH i hate noobs....[/code][[/i]

This is not a problem you tell them to get out once and if they don't you hit Q

The real problems are when they screw up your controls because of the bug or when you get out to repair and they decide to jump out and in to get to drive, however a kick/ban usually sorts out both of these problems.

i never thought it was a bug, but i dont know if im right or wrong so do correct, ive oftem been able to repair other tanks within a mammy when im an engineer, and i always thought it was a normal thing, until i notice i could only do it in streets (sometimes in under / walls) and i could usally do it in a hummv, but i think its normal for those vechs, plz do tell if u know (and yes ive been able to do it in APC's as well), it always seemed easier with engineers thou

I had that once when I was a officer inside a chinook, I could fire out of the windows on the sides. Pretty awesome.

It's not a vet trick by any means, it's a glitch and you shouldn't do it because it makes your vehicle jerk and become very hard to shoot with a slower projectile. won't stop those ramjets from getting 1000 points though..
