my harvester want to take a shortcut and i want it to go the other way.

I placed large pathfind blockers where he is headed but he ignored them.

should i delete pathfinding sectors and regenerate them with the blockers there?

Here's how you do it:

Make a topic called "Babysit Titan through doing maps."

Then ask every imaginable question in there. I'm asking to have you warned or banned right now for continually abusing the forum purpose.

Remember, it's you, not u.

If I didn't try helping anyone, I wouldn't have written an extensive map tutorial which answers all of these questions. :rolleyes:

I have to agree with ACK this time, read before you ask a question about every single problem you come across. If you haven't already get Renhelp 1.9 from Dante's Mod Exchange (link in my signature). There is a tutorial in there about how the map "Lunar Landing" was made. This will guide you through making a map and also how to set up a harvester in some detail. I suggest you read it. Also in Renhelp there are lots of things that will answer 90% of your questions. I don't mind helping people out but when you post a new topic each time for every problem you encounter it is a bit much, especially when these are simple questions that can be answered by a bit of reading.

I've read that TUT and it won't block the harvy!!

I wouldn't ask the question if there wasn't a real problem here.

Just forget it then...I'll regenerate pathfind and everything should be ok.

Sorry to get your pantys in a bunch.
