Well one night I join a friends server on carnage club and everything goes well until a cheater named jim something joins. This gets annoying but instead of kicking him the host being creative as he is agrees to let me counter him with a small unpublized mod of my own making.

Much owning of jim happens and he keeps asking me where he can download it and after I told him its mine and I use it for punks like you he said how do I make it. I just told him C++ he didnt even know what it is.

Well after killing the cheater over and over gets old the host kicks him I turn off the mod and we continue the game.

The next day however I get this

Link Removed, It was a prank

This makes me wonder if this jim actually went and reported me for not giving him my mod. Its even called a hack which is just wrong because no hacking occurs. Im wondering also why this is anonymous. No return address at all. I dont think this was faked either by jim because he didnt seem smart enough.

I just find it so ironic that a program EA itself released to the public to be used FOR renegade is now what is causing these cheats.

It's fake.

It's obvious.

LOL!

As if EA is really concerned about Renegade anymore. :-\

Program released by EA? Well, we wouldn't be very far now without them--it's really an unfortunate set of circumstances. I really don't think anyone could have really foreseen this specifically.

Oh wait. Turns out this is a prank.

Excuse me while I formulate my revenge
