It's because they are. Found a problem on the box that had been plaguing me with frustration for like a week now and the box was working harder than it should have... it's fixed now and it won't happen again.

I wish I knew... I know who's attacked me in the past, but I don't really know who's doing it now. I've become like, this server you attack when you're bored. I don't understand it, really. I don't even provoke them. Hell, I wasn't even at my computer last weekend because of doing birthday stuffs and yet someone felt the need to attack the server on Sunday afternoon.

The forums are quite a bit faster indeed. Isn't it possible to trace such attacks properly, btw?

The attacks use spoofed IP addresses which are untraceable

With all your lam0r signatures with all these moving pics in them, it wasn't helping the board at all either.

I haven't really noticed any change. As of now, the pages on the forum load really slow and sometimes it times out. There are times where it's really slow but then it go back normal speed for a minute or two then back to its usual slow speed.

It may just be my side that causes this problem.

It's slow for me too, but I think it's just the forum.
