Ohh well, I can still put plenty of stuff in my signature. I was just wondering, what is the signature limit right now? Characters?

I thought it was a max of 5lines

Anything bigger is just god dam annoying, most the time people write one line, but have 20 lines of moronic signature, WHY?!

No one really looks at it..

It used to be like 2000+ not too long ago...

Does this limit include the tags and the urls in the tags? Or just the actual text that is displayed? (like it should)

I think the software counts the characters, tags or not.

ACK, I don't want/need you to change anything about your sig image.

If you are having trouble staying under 650 characters, then you need to rethink your signature.

That's not "a bit overkill", that's overkill to a new extreme. 1 image in your signature is enough, 4 is way too much. Having 4 images that take up an entire screen in your signature defies the entire purpose of a signature.

Slow down there tiger. What I said is it comes up as two lines in Netscape. I mean that it does now. Before, it came up as 4 pictures stacked on top of each other. in 800x600 resolution, that was the screen.

I say if you want a sig with only images, only have 2 images at 400x85 pixels, vertical and/or (if they don't stretch the borders) horizontal. If you want a sig with a banner and some text, only one image, and 4 lines of text.

And there can be exceptions of course. (ACK being one of them)

We shouldn't have to change our resolution (Mine is currently 1024 by 768) just to fit your damn signature.

Besides, I was sayign that because they are annoying. Not size. Plus do you know were that picture goes after I look at it? It takes up space that I can use for something else I'm viewing.
