It may be the Windows XP Update. If you have Windows XP, have you downloaded any lately?

If you had took the time to read the whole thread you would have seen there is a 2000 fix also. Duh. The fix was released from Microsoft quite a while ago and is available through the Windows Update. Before you come up with some smart ass remark my Win2K backup system has the patch installed on it and works just fine. Just look for the KB824136 patch when you go to update.

Never the less, this seems like your only option...

So go swallow your AntiMicrosoft attitude and give it a go.

If it works, it wont have caused you much hassle...

Discalamer: Hassle may occur!
