I already did search several tutorial websites, and only at good-tutorials did I find that one that didn't work, and don't tell me to use google because I did that too.

Google is the biggest search engine online, there hasn't been much at all I haven't found using it. It is my homepage and I use it to find everything. As long as you know how to use it then you can find anything.

Typing "how to use photoshop" is likely to bring back a lot of junk, however serching for "photoshop tutorials" or "photoshop basic tutorial" is likely to bring back more useful results.

Yes, I tried google, I used the following "photoshop fire eye tutoriall" "photoshop flaming eye tutorial" and several other searches similar to that but didn't have any luck. N-sane doesn't have what I'm looking for they don't have a lot of tutorials but their tutorials are good. The best place I have found for tutorials is http://www.good-tutorials.com. I was messing around with photoshop and I gues I made a flaming eye sort of a thing . . . take a look . . .
