You think? It does suck the intaller doesn't even work, most bugs from the leaked beta are still there along with new ones. Deploying vehicles is more dangerous to you than the enemy. I'm sure theres more but since I couldn't get the stupid thing to install I don't know about any other problems with it.

If you haven't played Reborn, how would you know it sucked? From other people's biased opinions?

well, lets see...

An incomplete installer,

Installer corrupted a shared .dll file that is used to view streaming media,

The same bugs that existed in the beta still exist in the release,

- 'super invulnerable' jumpjet infantry
- ob won't fire at the mammoth mkII when it's standing still.
- jumpjet infantry can travel off the desert siege map
- GDI Refinery in Canyon doesn't have all it's collision settings done. (you can walk right through it, infantry or vehicle)
- GDI base defences give off massive points to at least rifle using infantry.

Just to name a few...

I'd say it sucks.

I started to download it, but stopped when I was reading bug reports. There is no way that I am installing something that screws with DLLs and corrupts them. If you are gonna mess with system files, don't screw 'em up. Sure, I suppose you can come back and say "Oh, you are just letting biased morons influence you". That may be, but I refuse to install something when it can screw up stuff.

Yes I downloaded both and tried installing it several times and it was fucked up every single time, gave me some error about a .dll being corrupt or something.

Make sure you delete all other .mix files in your data folder if you install this way. They will mess with the Reborn maps.

I suppose Renalert was perfect when the first public beta was released? I'm not saying either mod is better. sniper you can hate reborn because there are 2581074129432712 glitches or because you're biased or whatever. No one cares, there's no reason to tell the who world about it. Every game/mod has glitches, yet they're always playable. (i have to say though, if the reborn team were aware of the glitches, they should have fixed them before release. on the other hand, it was a beta). Besides, both mods are the work of a team striving to make the gameplay of renegade better. you can hate reborn if you like, but how would you like it if you made a mod and started getting flamed "OMG YOUR MOD SUXX0RZ THERES ISSS 5297502424238 GlltChEs OLOLOOLLOLOLOL1!!!!!!11111!"?

Depends if the bugs were known about and major. Like what Reborn was released with.

'serious' bugs released with Reborn:

- Invincible jumpjet infantry (there in beta as well)
- Ob won't fire on mammoth when it stands still (in beta as well)
- Refinery in Canyon has no collision settings other than projectile (it can be hit, but you can walk -or drive- through the walls)
- certain units can go off the map in some levels. (in beta as well)
- jumpjet infantry can fly underground
- repairing subterranean vehicles (at least the flame tank) causes you to warp above ground/underground repeatedly... I hope no one who suffers from epilepsy witnesses it.

'serious' bugs in the initial Renalert release

- spy is not ignored by base defences
- vehicles get stuck in Weapons Factory
- some weapons to massive damage to MCT

I'm sure there is more for both sides, but this is all I noticed/remembered.

That's exactly my point, bugs are unavoidable but the point is to keep them at a small number and not letting them get too serious *cough*Generals*cough*.

Usually the bugs in a game show me how much effort a team put into the game. In Reborn's case, none.
