I see a lot of people complaining about people cheating using custom skins, making C4 bright yellow, and stealth units visible, about how people can gain advantages over others. But I've come to realize that players can gain an immense advantage from the hardware they use. I used to have a 766mhz celeron with an ancient graphics card, and currently I use a 2.53 ghz pentium 4 with a GF4 mx420. There was a dramatic improvement in FPS rates and it was much easier to play Renegade. I recently got a new mouse, and aiming is way easier, so I just don't understand this argument

Well, that's a good point. Although, in this case, you're paying for an advantage.

Yah, I don't think RenGuard is going to protect against hardware specifications any time soon...

True, better hardware would definitely make aiming easier, but don't play Renegade for a while and then come back and you'll realize how rusty you can get.

Haha, we're going to make RenGuard drop everyone to 10 FPS so it's fair.

(that's a joke btw)

If you really want to be fantastic you could always find out who the current best player is and pay them to play using your username

Yes, but there is a way to see stealth units from far away. Now about skins making bright neon pink snipers is cheating because you can see them wherever they are at (Unless on a bright neon pink level), also making bright C4 is cheating because if placed properly c4 can be "hidden", also removing teh black when zoomed in on the sniper rifle is cheating because you can see more at a time. . .

Hrm... thats why I like consoles, everyone is on the same playing field and no cheats. Every play castle wolf on xbox? Xbox > Pc beacuse no cheaters, everyone has to use similiar style controler and hardware is the same for all...Now if it only had keyboard & mouse support it would be killer...

Exactly! I gtet around 8-25FPS on Renegade, making it very hard to snipe, depending o how much is going on.

Can you see heat waves on high graphics? Or am I just thinking Generals.

Yes there is, if im right its a objects.ddb file?
About the sniper skins, take field for example when your out there. Deadeye is much easier to see then a black hand sniper. Is that fair? I don't see a problem with bright sniper skins. How can you hide c4? Maybe from a n00b who can't see shit but decent players will find it. Lots of people have the clear scope too. I like the way Renalert's scope is. I can't stand that green shit. And again if there any good they'll find them anyways.

I have no problem with having a clear scope. It's the removal of the black area that I have a problem with. Simply because you can stay in scope mode, and still have a normal viewing area.

That's exactly what I hate, I love removing the green thing because with it on it just makes it harder to snipe.

Unless your trying to hit multiple targets or your the type of sniper that likes to zoom right in it doesn't do much

I can't believe you people are worried about bright pink skins and the black area while zoomed in. The issue of removing the black area from the sniper scope is just stupid to me. If the person sucks so badly at sniping that they have to remove the black area then they can have it. It will give them a better chance to see me right before I kill them

Okay I'll admit it gives them a slight advantage to be seeing glowing pink sbh soldier. In my opinion it's not that big a deal.

Btw this is coming from someone who has no skins or anything.

It is annoying to fight somone who is enjoying a nice 40 FPS as opposed to my 10, but unfortunately (as Crimson sarcastically pointed out) there's nothing you can do about it.

DragonFgIt is annoying to fight somone who is enjoying a nice 40 FPS as opposed to my 10,

Its annoying to fight someone with 10 FPS because:

- The hit detection in renegade is done on the client.
- If your machine is overworked it can lag the server.

DragonFgbut unfortunately (as Crimson sarcastically pointed out) there's nothing you can do about it.

Turn the detail level down and increase the framerate.

The hit detection is done by the shooter, not the shoot-ee. That's why bighead and final ren work.

I get steady 25-30 fps and I have no trouble sniping. But hey, i wouldn't mind having a better video card
