ive been working on ren alert map as well as Deadaim Here is a pic of it so far, it shows the allies island base

http://ramjet.rendata.net/pearl_harbor.jpg

There will be a small island with spawning gunboats below the airfield, and to the right of the main base. The soviets will have an aircraft carrier out to sea a little, but I havnt made it yet lol The map will only have naval and flying units, no ground except for maybe a few spawning rangers around the allies base since its so big.

Why are the soviets attacking Pearl Harbor? come to think of it, why are they attacking the US? As far as we know, Pearl Harbor could have been whacked by the Japanese in 1941.

Nice, but it's more likely that the Soviets would attack Alaska. Have you seen how close it is to Russia?

Yeah...Russia and Alaska used to be connected by land.

What the russians would most likely do is sling a load of nukes over at the U.S., but that wouldn't make for a very fun game, now, would it?

But the US wasn't part of the Allies in RA1. They probably would've remained neutral throughout the war (didn't get attacked by japanese in the middle of it), yet they supported the allies with weapons.

When games of this genre and time period are made, their makers almost always chose to follow an alternate reality because that allows for much more freedom to create new plots and senarios.

If you ignore that fact, it won't hinder the whole location of the battle.

EDIT: But seeing as ACK just showed that there was a large US role in RA, it is probable that the Soviets would benefit from attacking Pearl Harbor.

The US played a huge role in RA, where do you think most of the Allied equipment came from?

Or why General Carville in Red Alert: Retaliation is wearing a United States uniform?

Or why the Iwo Jima memorial is in Red Alert 2? It branches off from an Allied victory. I know that the Japanese attacked the US in Red Alert, in the same fashion, because Stalin had them do that to try and punish us for supplying the Allies with war technology.

Someone already released a fan map based on Pearl Harbor for Battlefield 1942, and it's way more accurate than yours...Sorry to bring this to you though.
