Although many of you may have been playing longer, I believe Renegade is officially 2 years old this week?

Join me in a show of support for the people that continue to enhance the environment of this game.

To the Host and Moderators of the Official Renegade Forums keeping Westwood alive despite their demise, and the many other endless websites that offer unique communities, files, and information to us all.

The Utility makers and their teams,
Modmakers and their teams,
Mapmakers and their teams,
And all the game server owners and their moderators.

Some of the best are still in the community today. These people and many more have donated funds, contributed time, and developed a generous seasoned community unlike another.

Electronic Arts can eat my shorts, I offer them no thanks. The nuisance of a cheater also I cannot thank. Westwood [R.I.P.]

See you on the field.

In a strange coincidence, the n00bstories-hosted Official Renegade Forums are 1 year old on February 27th, and Renegade is 2 years old on February 26th.

2000 members, I'm not complaining. Thanks to all who stick around!

Wow, 2 years old and still living, with no support from EA.

OT: Just noticed that the little input thingy in my sig has gone, I don't know where it came from but whoever fixed it thanks. It appeared in my sig after I last edited it, couldn't see anything in the sig that caused it though.
