Bottled watter is a rip off, I just drink tap water.

Gatorade tastes better but unless you are working out all the extra sugar and minerals are actually bad for you.

If by canned oxygen, you mean pure oxygen, that stuff is awesome. You can hold your breath for like 6 minutes at least with that stuff.

Well actually, our tap water over here is really bad. It leaves pinkish stains, the kid next door has high lead levels, and so on. Pfft, government water, go figure. Our electricity is excellent and is run by a PRIVATE company.

Whoops, sorry for rambling there

Anyway, I shall be drinking plenty of bottled water as of now (as well as praying). God bless Aquafina!

It could be worse:

Coca-Cola

"reverse osmosis", "a technique perfected by Nasa to purify fluids on spacecraft"

Where do you think the "fluids" come from :twisted:

What they just mentioned there is a process that has been around for a while. All bottled water goes through reverse osmosis. Otherwise its just tap water. Either use reverse osmosis or use extreme pressure fo force water through a lump of plastic to remove impurities. Reverse osmosis is the fastest way to purify water. So when Coca Cola are boasting it...don't be overwhelmed! Any bottled water is just as good.

I hate bottled water, I think it tastes bad. I just drink tap water. It's cheaper. The bad thing about tap water around here is that it has a ton of lime in it. When you put it in fishtanks and fountains, a yellow crust material forms over the edges of them. Still, I can't taste it though, so I don't care.

Reminds me of an episode of "Only Fools and Horses", when Del Boy tries to sell tap water as some kind of bottled water that comes from "Peckham's finest spring", or something.

Sorry if I sound like the Daily Mail but just occasionally they're right.

I was kidding. I'm in Phoenix, AZ. If I wanted to live in another country, I would probably choose London. I almost moved there for a year to work once. I want to visit France and finish learning French, but I'm a stupid American to them.

Although London is the capital of England, I'm glad I don't live there. The sub-capital is good enough for me

Just wondering, did you think London was really a country?

I didn't word that right, but I do know that London is in England and is merely a city, not a country in its own right.

I was going to say "abroad" but I figured I'd invite all sorts of innuendo.

They were selling perfectly drinkable tap water for 3000 times the price, and during the "purification" process added twice the legal limit of a cancer-causing chemical. Morons!
