On the computer, you need to retrieve the power system (With the triangle) and type QUEST on the computer and press enter and you'll see a room that you played before, write down those letters and get in the door (inside the computer) and you'll see more letters, write them down too, for example, you see STEA and scramble them to an english word, like STEA to EAST. And you need to type the word you scrambled and press enter and the subtitles will say that: "I think that i opened the door." and you can go to the next door!

Move the chair after you put the tiles in.

For every thingy, there is one shape that is different. After you finished it, go back to the room you came in and move the box so you can get to the metal box behind it, there will be a key in it.

Pathetically easy, guys. Think a little more. You are too used to strategy guides, and cheats. Did any of you realize that the door lock with multiple puzzles was only a series of logic puzzles used to determine I.Q.'s, or did you just keep doing it over and over until you eliminated all options?

Think like an engineer, dammit.

with the colored wheels, you have to move each color around until they match up underneath the outside colors...so inside the blue quarter-circle you'll have the blue, the green with the green, etc.

You have to go to the room with the window that has the space scene on it, open the right drawer for the pen, than go down the right hole and get the paper, go back to the room with the letter saying theres some beast or something on the loose, put the trace paper on that and than put the pen on the trace paper. Afterwards go back to the mail room and put the new letter in the slot and go through a few rooms and than come back and open the compartment on the machine and you'll get it.

I still can't get gray, any help?

On the wheels -- the wheel on the capsule thing is a color. You have to click on the two wheels on the right side that make up that color... like red+blue = purple. Once you do that like 3 times, it turns gray and you can use the time capsule thing.

When you figure out the panel where you add up numbers, once you zoom out from that panel click on the panel again and the wall will move back. Through that door is a place to hand the clock weights and get the item that goes on the pedestal.

There is no beeping or anything to let you know if you are entering the code... just type your combination of letters (1 2 and 3) and then press E.

Anyone stuck behind the third wall, you can press the panel to the left of the third control box and go up a hidden ladder, then back to the first control computer, turn off the third wall, go back up and around and you're in the room with the soda machine.

You need a key to open the chest to get a coin . . . check the shelves I think they had some stuff on them. Also you need a ball and the chalk then you can play pool after you beat the pool thing a key should have fell out where the balls come out . . . go and get another coin, then you can get a soda . . .

There are two entrances to the hallway, one in the back and one up front. You can manually disable the third laser in the control room, then leave throught the first entrance and enter through the one further up, which allows you to pass the third gate.

I already passed it. I'm happy.

Play pool . . . you get the key out of the pool table once you win . . . like I said before you need a ball, the que ball, you need chalk for the pool stick, and you need a key to open the chest to get the coin so you can play the game . . .

You have to aim slightly to one side, not straight.

This game was fun, and there were only like 3 places where I was stuck
One where you have to take pin from the flag to open the diskette box. On that part, I had to look for help on there forums, because I had no idea that you can tak the pin.
The part with the burning log and security triangle was hard too, because the game does not allow you to carry the butning log, and the 3 peaces of the triangle(I wonder why). And I don't see the connection between the burning log ijn the chimney, and the laser.
Also on the part where you have to find the secret passage near the end was quite complicated.

For the first one, you have to use the chalk first on the stick for good aim.

For the connection with the laser. To cut the triangle the laser needs to have a lot of electrical power. To get this power, you have to turn all the other electrical things off. Because of the burning log in the chimney the electrical heating systems goes off, and more electricity is free. You don't want to know how long I have been stuck here to finnally find out, that I also had to turn off the lamp that I accidently turned on.

In level 12, where is the key to the final door? Is it in the soda machine? Do I need a coin? If yes, is there a way to get one in level 12, or am I stuck??

P.S. Thanks so much for the green wall diagram. I never could get it down lower than 10 or 11...4 is tough.

Goto the room with the lamp and the code. Turn off the light (NOT THE LAMP!) and click on it. You should get a key. Then goto the room with the control moniter by the 3rd laser wall, and open the locker with the key. Grab the key and screwdriver. Goto the door, and use they key on it. Voila, your free.

Thanks! I played it all over again anyway, just to get the coin & buy a soda...I gotta tell you, this game isn't as fun the second time around - you already know how to do everything.
