...get the good old "unauthorized game2.exe file found on your system" message, even after I know I got the right one. Any ideas?

Did you resolve your virus issue? Which no-cd did you use? If necessary we can send you a replacement game2.exe, to at least rule out that its different somehow.

Yes, I got rid of it. Along with about 1/3 of my system files :/... I'm pretty sure it's the right no-cd crack. I bought a new copy of renegade for $4.99 at walmart and reinstalled ... but I still had that same message even before I installed the no-cd crack.

Just add me on MSN real quick (x15incherx@hotmail.com.) I believe I got a supposedly working Game2.exe file a split second before I got banned, but that one doesn't work.

I get the same error, I tried finding djlaptop's no-cd patch however to no avail.

I suffered a similar problem with another game a few months ago. The problem I believe is that when you run the game (in this case Game2.exe) the file size changes by about 35kb causing a difference between your Game2.exe and the master servers acceptable Game2.exe.

A temporary solution is that each time before you run RenGuard place a fresh Game2.exe (unzip Game.exe from zip to another directory and rename it then move/copy it in), this is what I do and it works fine after replacing Game2.exe with a fresh one.

djlaptop's nocd can be found at <http://www.beaconpedestal.com/nocd>. It isn't listed anywhere on the main site, so you'd have to know where it was.

Maybe the other nocd cracks could be put in an allow list, but then again what if a malicious game.exe was made with the same filesize as an allowed one? Or maybe the verifier looks at the actual code in the file.

Ok, it looks like unzipping a new game.exe file everytime i load renegade will work. But, now I got a new lil problem... <http://img42.photobucket.com/albums/v129/x15incherx/hmmm.jpg>

YES! I got it working. It doesn't really make a difference...I'm banned from over half of the public servers for...I got no idea what.
